Q.1. Read the passage carefully and answer the questions that follow:

The combination of material energy and vital energy results in the emergence of a unique energy which is called Yajnagni. Agni accepts the sacrificial fire and takes it to the heavenly planets and is the jeweler of the host. Dry woods of mango, peepal, cedar etc. with medicinal properties in yajna fire and clove, brahmi, punarnava, khus, sandalwood, mace, saffron, kamalgatta, indra, barley, dry grapes, raisins etc. about 35-40 types The things are used as Havan Samagri. As a result, special types of gases with medicinal properties are produced, which make a destructive attack on the microbes and viruses present in the environment or in the patient's body. This type of airborne medicinal substances is taken by the diseased person by breathing and through hair follicles, which prove to be more effective and beneficial than these nutritious substances digested by the stomach, because these medicinal substances are strong for digestion. This type of Yajnik air also has the property of drying, which dries the wounds of the lungs. It is mentioned in the Yajurveda that the yajna, restorative and water-modifying yajna material projected in the fire is carried by the wind to a long distance in the form of air ghost and destroys the disease-causing substances after reaching there. After scientific tests, it has also been concluded that the smoke of Aparajita, Neem, Nagar Motha and Vacha medicines is capable of suppressing all types of germs/viruses. Along with this, blood purification is also done. The fire element predominates in the body of the person who regularly performs havan of Google, clove, ghee, sugar, sandalwood powder etc. and his immunity increases.
